HOLIDAY IN WASHINGTON.

Washington, April 27.—The machinery of government was halted today by executive order of President Harding, so that thousands of federal officials and employees in common with citizens and visitors in Washington might do honor to the memory of General U. S. Grant at the dedication of the bronze memorial in the Botanic gardens on the centenary of the birth of the Union soldier and president. At the same time President Harding was participating in similar exercises at Point Pleasant, Ohio, the birthplace of the Union leader.

A half-holiday was granted federal employees, the public schools were closed, the city bedecked in flags and bunting and men and women were marshaled from all sections of the country to form an impressive parade in homage to the late soldier. The house stood adjourned today out of respect to General Grant and to enable members to attend the services. The senate also adjourned.

Senator McCumber paid a tribute to General Grant.

HARDING IN CINCINNATI.

Cincinnati, T. April 27.—President Harding was given a hearty welcome on his arrival here today on his way to Point Pleasant, Ohio, to take part in the centennial celebration of the birth of U. S. Grant. A large crowd greeted him when his train arrived. At the hotel President and Mrs. Harding held a reception. Afterward they embarked on the government boat Cayuga and began the journey to Point Pleasant.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

Point Pleasant, Ohio, April 27.—The world today needs something of the spirit of General Grant, President Harding declared today, in an address at exercises commemorating the 100th anniversary of the birth here of the great military leader.

"I sometimes wonder," the president said, "if the magnanimity of Grant, the dogged, persistent, unalterable Grant in warfare, the unconditional surrender of Grant—would not be helpful in the world today. The great world struggle which we might reasonably designate the Civil war of the western civilization, and in which we so creditably and so helpfully participated left peoples and nations prostrate, hardly knowing which way to turn for restoration. I cannot help but believe that something of the spirit with which Grant welcomed victory, something of his eagerness to return to peaceful ways, would have speeded the restoration and speeded the return of prosperity and happiness, without which there can be no abiding peace."

Mr. Harding paid tribute to Grant as "the military hero of the republic; a commanding figure in the history of the world; the surpassing example of magnanimity of all times; the most striking example of the possibilities in American life; the confident and relentless commander in war, and the modest and sympathetic petitioner for peace after victory."

"It is 57 years since Grant garlanded victory with magnanimity. It is 37 years since he laid down the weary autograph pen and made his one and only surrender. His fame is secure. The republic has not forgotten and will not forget."

"What of the republic itself? It will not be unseemly to say that American example and American conception of justice and liberty since have been influenced the world little less significantly than Grant's service to the union shaped the course of our land."

No Aggression in His Breast
"Though he proclaimed the doctrine of moral disarmament at Appomattox he believed in a nation equipped for a righteous cause," Mr. Harding declared. "But no aggression was in his breast."

Declaring at the outset that he had pondered over the attributes of the character of Grant, the president said the Union leader "looms majestic in the blend of them all—his fame is secure."

"One must reverse his military genius, even though its development was one of those miracles of man's will," he continued. "No one would have picked him in youth or early manhood for the great commander. Responsibility and necessity matured the latent genius. Donelson was a flash of daring, Vicksburg his trophy of courage and undaunted determination, Petersburg the revelation of his genius. But at Appomattox he was Grant the magnanimous, who spoke for reunion as he had fought for union and turned from grim warrior to ambassador of peace. He could never hate nor humiliate, and in the very glow of surpassing triumph, he could not be ungratuitous or inconsiderate."

"In that supreme moment of victory, with the union saved at unutterable cost, he seems to have surveyed the many disappointments, the meas-

PRESIDENT GRANT, MY FATHER, AS I REMEMBER HIM

Ulysses S. Grant, namesake and second son of General Grant, is like his father, a man of the people. He is prominent in California, and is the owner of the U. S. hotel in San Diego, which he named after his famous father. Grant is 70 years old.

BY ULYSSES S. GRANT, JR.,
Son of the Late President of the United States.

His unfailing calmness, his ability to think out every act before making it, and his remarkable memory, are the traits which stand out most clearly in my memory as I look back on the life of my father.

He was a splendid family man. We all loved him but with that affection was a respect, almost an awe, that nobody else has even commanded from me.

Although we were raised in the days of "spare the rod and spoil the child," he never laid the weight of his hand on one of us. He didn't need to. His slightest rebuke held a greater sting than the whip.

Example of Rebuke.
I remember one day when we were living in Washington. We were preparing to go for a drive. The carriage was crowded and I was sitting on the box with the coachman. Without thinking of the consequences, I cracked the whip and only the good horsemanship of the coachman saved us from a runaway.

"That was thoughtless," was all my father said to me, and yet the rebuke has burned in my memory ever since.

I like to recall the love and loyalty between my father and my mother. Mother loved to tell us of father during the days of his courting, when he was a second lieutenant fresh from West Point, and she was the daughter of a southern planter. "A beautiful young man," she called him.

She always said Grandmother Dent predicted, even in the days of his young lieutenantcy, that he would be president of the United States.

"Julia," mother said grandmother told her, "that young man can explain politics so clearly I can understand the situation perfectly. I know he will be president of the United States."

Like all the Grants, father cared very little for music. He used to say all music was divided to him into two selections, "Hall's Conquering Hero Comes," which he had heard so often he couldn't forget it, and the "other piece."

Liked to Read.
He was fond of reading and could consume an inordinate amount of reading matter. Throughout all his life he retained his intense love for horses, which is the outstanding trait of his boyhood. He was always a little disappointed that his three sons didn't share his enthusiasm for good horsemanship.

"Fred," he would say, "knows very little about horses; Buck (which was my nickname) knows nothing, and Jesse less than that."

Fond of Cards.
I think he got the greatest relaxation, especially in his latter years after he was president and we were living in New York, from a game of cards. He didn't care for chess, he could win too easily. He liked cribbage, but poker was his favorite game. I remember many a game he had with Commodore Garrison, Senator McKim and Senator Chaffee. They always played draw poker—this was over 50 years ago—and for a small limit. Mother didn't like to have him win the money of other men, although they were much wealthier than he, and so when he came home from a game, he would call up to mother: "Well, Julia, I'm home. I lost my money."

He always joked about mother's inability to play cards and loved to tell guests about the time he stacked her hand. They were having a friendly game and mother left the room for a minute. Father winked at the others and stacked her hand giving her a royal heart flush.

"When mother returned," he would chuckle, "she picked up her hand and said, 'Give me four cards.'"

Father had a remarkable memory for names and dates.

My brother Fred and I usually read him the proof sheets of his "Memoirs," as they came from the printers. He would often stop us while he gave a word or a statement the most thorough study. He disliked misstatement and always lost confidence in the person who made one.

During that last sad year of his life as he held death at bay while he struggled under almost unsurmountable difficulties to finish his book, he showed the same courage, the same patience and consideration for other that was always a part of him.

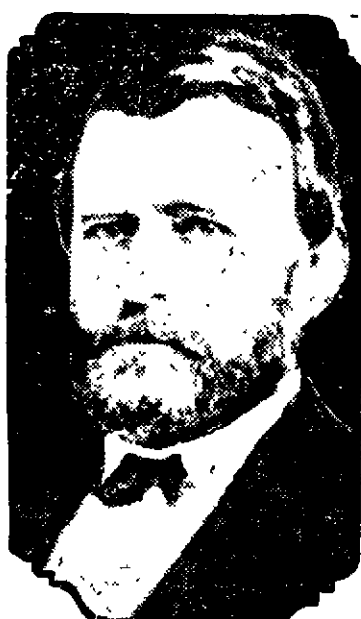

"Son," he would say to me, "no Grant is afraid to die."

He never let mother know that he knew he was afflicted with cancer and death was inevitable. Before her he was always cheerful, concealing his pain.

BASEBALL CLUB
FATE UNDECIDEDMuch Depends Upon Success of Bout Friday Night

Baseball fans and others are urgently requested to support the Bismarck Athletic Association by attending the Boxing Carnival to be given at the Bismarck Auditorium for the benefit of the Bismarck Baseball Club, the club officials said today. The success of this carnival means that Bismarck will have a first class baseball team for the season of 1922. This is going to be a top-notch clean exhibition, and one which ladies are cordially invited to attend. Smoking will not be allowed and loud, obscene or profane language will not be tolerated. In the larger cities this show would cost from three to four times the prices asked, it is said. The prices range from 50c in the gallery to $2.50 for rinkside, war tax included.

A meeting of the baseball fans of the city will be called next week to promulgate plans for the 1922 season to which everybody is urged to attend. A financial statement of the receipts and disbursements for the season of 1921 will be made, and also statements covering the two boxing carnivals. The time and place of the meeting will either be announced from the ringside Friday night or be given through the Tribune early next week. The boxes were to have a work-out this afternoon between 4 and 5 p. m. at St. Mary's school gymnasium. The boxes will weigh in tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Grand Pacific billiard parlor.

CHICAGO MARVEL
AT GIRL'S FEATS

Chicago, April 27.—Members of the Chicago medical society were marveling here today over feats performed last night by Willette Huggins 17-year old girl, blind and deaf.

The young woman was brought to Chicago from the home for the blind at Galveston, Wisconsin, although totally blind and totally deaf can distinguish colors with great rapidity, read newspaper headlines, talk over the telephone, enjoy music and carry on a conversation.

She can hear a lecture or an orchestra concert by holding a sheet of paper in her air and hear over the telephone by putting her fingers over the receiver. By fingerings newspaper headlines she is able to read.

BERRY DECIDES FOR J. I. CAHILL,
WARDEN NAMEDExpected That Action Will Be

Of Mr. Cahill

WARDENSHIP IS PRIZE

Appointment of Mr. Stair For Another Two Year Term Is Made by Board Members

Judge H. L. Berry, of Mandan, today decided the Cahill-Murphy case in favor of Mr. Cahill. It was announced in district court at Mandan.

It was announced in Bismarck that the board of administration had, late yesterday, reappointed L. L. Stair warden of the penitentiary for a period of two years.

It was expected that proceedings would be instituted in district court here in an effort to have R. B. Murphy declared entitled to the seat of Mr. Cahill in the board of administration.

These were the latest developments in the fight resulting from the board of administration cases.

The order of Judge Berry restrains members of the board of administration from interfering with Mr. Cahill in the performance of his duties, or until further order of the court. It does not, according to attorneys, decide the title to the office, this not being at issue in the case.

It is expected that proceedings will now be instituted to oust Mr. Cahill and reinstate Mr. Murphy, appointed to his place by Governor Nestos after Cahill was declared to have forfeited his office.

Warden Appointed

The appointment of warden of the penitentiary was made by R. T. Muir, Mr. Cahill and Geo. Totten in a meeting held late yesterday. J. A. Kitchin, member of the board, was not present, being in another meeting. He asserted he was notified too late to attend. Miss Nina J. Nelson was out of the city, returning last night.

The position of warden of the penitentiary is said to have been a prize that Nonpartisans were fighting for in the Cahill case. Mr. Stair's two-year term expired April 27. The reappointment is for two years.

Files Petition with State
Railroad Commission

SAYS SERVICE IS CUT OFF

A petition has been filed with the state railroad commission by the Capital Commercial Company of Bismarck, against the Hughes Electric company, in which the company petitions the board to order the utility to furnish electric current to it.

The petition says that the company has been a patron of the utility for the last three years, that during this time the company has charged therefor a maximum rate, that the petitioner has paid the company from time to time such sums as have been assessed against the petitioner, that the company has from time to time granted credit and extensions in time and payment, and that petitioner has relied upon said custom and has continued to do business with the company. It alleges that on April 14 the utility unlawfully and without consent of the petitioner disconnected the wires carrying electric current to the petitioner, did shut off the heat and refused to begin service again, and the petitioner alleges he had paid to the respondent all his cash demands to date.

Claims Order Not Obedied
The petitioner alleges the Hughes Electric Company has not complied with the order of the railroad board as set forth in the findings and conclusions in case No. 1683 in which the commission considered a petition of users of electricity for a reduction in the rate.

It alleges that the utility has not filed with the railroad body a report such as is specified in the order promulgated in the case in detail statement to enable the commission to determine from the report either the gross or net returns and results of the monthly or annual operation of the utility and further that the respondent has not set aside the four per cent allowed for depreciation in a fund as a separate reserve against depreciation.

Says Rates Too High
It further alleges: "That respondent has diverted a large portion of its earnings to extension and that such sums have been added to its capital account and charged as an expense against the earnings of its plant when in fact it should be added to the net profits. That the respondent has charged a large sum to legal expense and that said charges are far in excess of the average sum necessary according to the findings in case No. 1683. That the rate charged to that which will yield a return of 8 per cent on the capital invested and 4 per cent set aside as a reserve for depreciation."

The petition asks that the utility be ordered to reduce the rates for electric current and steam heat and that a trial balance and complete accounting and inventory be made to the commission for the period beginning on April 26, 1921, and ending April 25, 1922, and that "all funds diverted from the earnings of the respondent for extensions and placed in the capital account as a liability against the earnings of the utility for rate-making purposes be returned to the profit and earnings account."

It asks that the utility be directed to furnish the petitioner with service.

The largest weighed 1-1/4 pounds.

John Engell Traced By Police,
Arrested at McClusky and Is Brought Here

JUST OUT OF PRISON

Young Man Says He Was Released From Prison on April
16; Headed For Canada

John Engell, a young man about 23 years old, out of the penitentiary less than two weeks, today, re-entered the penitentiary for a five-year sentence.

Engell confessed he stole the automobile of Dr. W. H. Bodenstab, of Bismarck. He was arrested at McClusky late yesterday by the sheriff on telephonic request of Chief of Police Martinson, of Bismarck, was brought to Bismarck at 5 o'clock this morning by Chief Martinson and Deputy Sheriff Robert Phelps, waived preliminary examination before Police Magistrate Cashman, was taken before Judge Nuesse at 11:30 o'clock and sentenced to five years in the prison, the sentence begins at noon.

Engell refused to confess to the McClusky county authorities who were asked to arrest him on information obtained by Chief Martinson but confessed to the local chief.

Tells Story in Court.

Engell told his story in court. He had been before Judge Nuesse twice previously, which, the judge said, must be taken into consideration in pronouncing sentence. He was first sentenced to the training school in Mandan, but was released before he was 21. He was later sentenced on a plea of guilty to robbing a Syrian at McClusky. He got out of the penitentiary April 17, he said. He went to Mandan for a day and returned to Bismarck.

He claimed that on the night of April 18, the night the Cadillac automobile of Dr. Bodenstab was stolen from the latter's garage, he got something to drink downtown. He said he was walking down the street past the Bodenstab house about midnight. He entered the garage, backed out the car and started north to Canada. He claimed that when he got a few miles from Turtle Lake he ran out of gasoline and purchased gasoline from a farmer at 5 a. m. He said he could not start the car after he got it. When he backed out of the garage he backed into a hedge, and a door of the automobile was knocked loose.

Defects in Story.
Engell claimed that he did not remember when he opened the garage and took out the car and that he had never run a car before excepting a Ford. He said he had no trouble until he ran out of gasoline.

On being pressed by Judge Nuesse he said he was starting for "Canada." All of the story he told is not substantiated, according to police. Dr. Bodenstab said the automobile contained no gasoline when found.

When Engell was before Judge Nuesse before he refused to tell facts concerning the robbery of the Syrian near McClusky. He admitted to Chief Martinson and Judge Nuesse that there were five men in that robbery.

Chief Martinson refused to divulge the method by which he traced the robbery to Engell.

San Francisco, April 27.—A reduction in the price of gasoline and the addition of ten billions gallons annually to the California refinery output will result from the success of secret experiments conducted in San Francisco for more than three years, according to statements made today by C. New York, April 27.—Louis and Jack Wolfe and Jacob Price were arrested by postoffice inspectors today in connection with the $250,000 mail truck robbery perpetrated in lower Broadway on October 24, 1921. Stolen securities valued at $75,000 were recovered.

Large Territory is Flooded When
River Breaks Through
Levee Holding It

Shreveport, La., April 27.—Several persons were killed and a number of small houses were washed from their foundations when Bonita creek at Nacogdoches, Texas, 75 miles southwest of here, went out of its banks last night, flooding the lowlands, according to a telephone message received today.

BREAK LEVEE

Natchez, Miss., April 27.—Flood waters of the Mississippi river pouring through a rapidly widening crevice at the Wecoma levee this morning reached and entered the town of Ferriday, Louisiana, four miles from the break.

The residents had received warning of the approach of the waters in ample time to escape. The town of Vidalia, with a population of 2,000, is next in the path of the flood and is expected to be reached today.

Residents of the half dozen parishes to one of the richest farming sections of the state early today were preparing against the advent of flood waters.

Every available power boat in Natchez, with the United States steamboat Tonic of the navy fleet here has hastened to the affected territory for flood relief work and arrangements were being made today to care for all refugees arriving here.

RIVER CONTINUES RISE

Dallas, Tex., April 27.—The Trinity river has reached a stage of 42.3 feet today and was still rising at the rate of 3 feet an hour.

Tents and churches here are being used by persons driven from their homes in the lowlands. A score of men, women and children were rescued from the buildings on which they had been moored yesterday near Irving, by motor boats furnished by the sheriff's department. No lives have been reported lost although untold damage has been done to crops in Dallas county.

The general flood situation in North and Central Texas had shown no improvement early today. A number of West Texas towns reported an abnormal rainfall with all creeks overflowing.

Two thousand people are reported homeless at Breckenridge, due to flood waters from Gansales creek which runs through the city. Property damage is beyond estimation. All rail communication is severed. Eastland is in a similar position, about 300 persons being made homeless there by high waters. Flood conditions are reported at a number of other towns. Railroad traffic both east and west of Dallas is badly demoralized.

DISCOVER MISSING PERSONS

Fort Worth, Texas, April 27.—Discovery of several of the persons reported missing in the flood here today reduced the list to 34, the known deaths remaining at 7. Three bodies are in the morgue and four others have been discovered.

Los Angeles, Calif., April 27.—The "invisible empire" has been rendered conspicuously visible, it was declared today at the district attorney's office after a preliminary inspection of articles seized last night when agents of the district attorney and deputy sheriff successfully raided the Los Angeles offices of the Ku Klux Klan. While a detailed inspection of the confiscated documents and regalia which filled four large packing boxes was postponed until late today sufficient was learned for county officials to assert that they would be of great importance in Los Angeles county but not in other parts of the United States.

NORTHWEST IN BUSINESS LEAD, TO MAINTAIN IT

J. L. Tipton, Northwestern Manager For Harvester Company, Is Optimistic

DEALERS ENTHUSIASTIC

Banquet at McKenzie Hotel Closes Meeting Here—Dealers Drive "Red Babies" Away

The great Northwest already leads the nation in the production of surplus agricultural products, and will maintain that place in the onward march for the next ten years, according to J. L. Tipton, manager for the Northwestern district— including Iowa, Wisconsin, Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon—for the International Harvester Company, who addressed over one hundred dealers for the company at a banquet at the McKenzie hotel last night.

The banquet was the climax of the day's program of "pep and prosperity" meetings. It followed the unique and striking parade of "Red Babies"— shiny, new red trucks which the implement dealers have purchased to canvass the country for business— which moved through the business streets of Bismarck. After the banquet the dealers left in their new "Red Babies," over the different highways, for their homes. By next week 300 of these "Nations' Service Trucks," as they have been termed, will be covering the highways and byways of North Dakota and rendering service to the farmers to an extent never before attempted or even dreamed. P. R. Fields, manager of the Bismarck branch, was toastmaster of the evening.

"This district has the jump on the rest of the country," said Mr. Tipton, "and must use every effort to hold its advantage. North Dakota and surrounding territory has the resources to compete with any section of the United States and to surpass most of it. We also have the progressive-spirited people who can make business a living fact in every line if they get out and hustle hard enough.

Depression raising. "The depression is practically over, unemployment is disappearing, crop prospects are good, prices for farm products are jumping up, the clouds of agriculture are fast passing and the sun is shining again. We can make North Dakota and district the center of the nation's prosperity if we want to. I believe we will do it."

Mr. Alexander is an exponent of the dairy business. He urged dealers to devote some of their time to urging crop diversification.

There is no one factor that produces the wealth to the farmer than the dairy cow," he said. "She produces the dairy cow twice a day, three hundred and sixty-five days in a year, and it makes no difference to her whether there may be hard times or not; she does not take it into account but is a faithful producer every day.

"The one-crop farmer is always handicapped by the possibility of failure, not only from drought but from hail and various other causes, and when his one crop is destroyed, his entire year's work is gone for naught, but if he would diversify his farming and provide feed to take care of his dairy cows, there is no climatic condition that will interfere with their production and as the crop is saleable every day in the year and at a profit and for cash, my message is merely to encourage in every way possible, the milking of more cows.

Congratulates Bankers. "It is very gratifying indeed to know that the bankers of North Dakota have volunteered to loan money to farmers who will invest the loan in dairy cows."

While the state of North Dakota as a whole is represented by a cash income from the dairy industry of $14,000,000 per annum from 370,707 dairy cows located on 77,698 farms, 43 per cent of the total is tributary to Bismarck, N. D., he said.

Dealers Sing Songs. The banquet was held in Patterson hall. The tables were arranged in the form of a great square. During the evening an orchestra played and the dealers enthusiastically sang several songs, among them parodies in which the "Red Baby" truck was frequently mentioned. There were miniature "Red Baby" trucks on the tables in the banquet hall, and one dealer, holding one of them in his hands, led three rousing cheers for the "sales and service" agent. The tables were handsomely decorated, and each dealer wore a clown cap and a carnation in his coat. Some of the dealers were called

By NEA Service. Nashville, Tenn., April 26.—Bravery? The "Battalion of Death" must have been playing in the bush league! For, after we've all pretty well settled down to the conclusion that when a woman sees a mouse the natural reaction will be a scream and a quick ascent to the top of a chair, along come Miss Annie Mae Wright and Mrs. D. M. Staples and knock that truth higher than a cocked hat.

For these two women are rat-catchers.

They catch enough rats every day to make the famed Pied Piper of Hamelin look like a piker.

Right now they're waging a rat-killing war in Nashville. There were upon for short talks by P. R. Fields, manager of the Bismarck branch.

E. A. Shabel, of Glendive, Montana, stressed the importance of advertising in newspapers. He said that his firm took hold of a lumber and implement business in Glendive in 1915 that had done a $15,000 a year business, and by use of a great deal of advertising his firm increased the business to $155,000 in one year.

FIND FOREIGN MARKETS FOR SURPLUS GRAIN

This Is Only Way To Bring Higher Prices To Farmers, Says Vrooman

Kansas City, Mo., April 26.—Sale of surplus agricultural products to foreign countries was suggested as a means of bringing higher prices to farmers by Carl Vrooman, former Assistant Secretary of Agriculture in an address here today before the convention of the Mississippi Valley Association.

"The speaker urged his auditors to 'find foreign markets' for the farmers surplus crops by the skillful use of credits."

"The splendid and almost instantaneous rise in the price of corn and wheat," Mr. Vrooman asserted, "resulting from our gift of $20,000,000 worth of grain to Russia shows unmistakably how nearly the bull factors have come to overcoming the bear factors in our terminal markets and hence how easy it would have been at any time during the past year to raise the price of our farm products up to the cost of production, by selling—not all—but a reasonable percentage of our surpluses abroad on credits."

"If everybody in the corn belt would boost corn, as every man, woman and child in the south boosts cotton, we long since would have found a way to dig ourselves out of the hole we are in. Even the bollweevil is said to have put his shoulder to the wheel in the south last year and by reducing the surplus to have done more than any other single agency to help boost the price of cotton."

As an illustration of the way the "South pulls together" Mr. Vrooman cited the operation of the Edge Bank Law which helps to finance the exportation of cotton on credit. "I am told that over fifteen hundred banks throughout the southern states in addition to numerous business men and farmers took stock in this New Orleans Export Bank, because they realized that unless this surplus cotton could be gotten rid of in foreign markets the south was headed for the financial rocks," he said.

Suggests Taking Steps. "If we could develop the corn belt consciousness it would be an easy matter to pool the grain, the driving power and the financial resources of this fertile region behind our staple crop in such a way as to shove the price of corn up at least to the cost of production," he continued. "For example, we could organize a powerful Edge Law Export Bank; we could get needed waterway legislation, and other measures required, in order to lower freight rates on agricultural products and we could have laws designed to perfect our present costly and cumbersome marketing system. These steps could raise the price of farm products on the farm while at the same time lowering the cost of food to the consumer."

But entirely practical and highly desirable as these suggestions are they cannot be put into effect soon enough to enable us to meet our present tragic economic crisis. The fundamental weakness in the recent National Agricultural Conference at Washington was the fact that it devoted most of its time and attention to working out an agricultural policy that it will take a generation or more to carry into effect, instead of focusing its attention upon emergency measures required to save the farmers and business men from imminent financial disaster.

"The only thing that I know of that our government can do that will give immediate relief to the farmer and business man in this crisis is to find foreign markets for the farmers' surplus crops by a skillful use of credits."

It is planned to have Legion and Auxiliary members unite in community church services, to be held in all towns on the afternoon of Mother's Day. Auxiliary units will arrange concerts in hospitals in which there are veterans of the late war and programs of entertainment also will be given in orphan asylums in which there are children of men of the World War.

The auxiliary also will promote the observance of established features of the day, such as church attendance, in the morning, preaching of appropriate sermons and the urging of everyone to write or wire his mother on that day or send her flowers.

Mother's Day was originated by Miss Anna Jarvis, of Philadelphia. The American Legion Auxiliary is composed of the Mothers, Wives, sisters and daughters of Legion men.

MOVE TO END OFFICIAL CENSORSHIP

By NEA Service. New York, April 26.—The big clean-up of the movies has started.

Will Hays' dictum barring "Fatty" Arbuckle films and announcement of a great May Movie Carnival in New York, dedicated to charity and backed by leaders of business and society, are significantly linked as concerted steps toward the regeneration of the screen.

The movie industry sees in these almost simultaneous events the twin aims:

To prove conclusively that Will Hays, in his new job as president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, is dictator of the movies.

To clothe the movie industry with respectability and give its people and its activities the endorsement of big business and high society.

"General" Hays is saying nothing to amplify his laconic verdict against exhibiting ruckie films.

But it is understood that Arbuckle is on probation of at least a year—that the comedian's private life and the future attitude of the public toward him will determine whether Hays will ever lift the ban against him.

Meanwhile such eminent persons as E. H. Gary, Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt 2nd, Mrs. E. R. N. Harriman and others are pushing the May Movie Carnival, to be held April 29 to May 9, when a king and queen of the movies will be elected and proceeds turned over to charity. And with them stands Will Hays, "Landis of the Movies" with the guarantee that, unlike many previous "movie-balls," great stars actually will be there.

The clean-up of the movies is regarded by many as likely to touch the stars involved in notoriety. The movie industry thinks Hays is out to clean house ruthlessly—even to the moral regulation of private life.

Behind it all runs the belief that Hays' great object is to check the spread of government censorship—city, state and national. State censorship now exists in New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Maryland, Kansas and Ohio, while Florida accepts the rulings of the New York board or the unofficial action of the National Board of Review. Massachusetts is to vote on state censorship next November. City censorship exists in Chicago and Kansas City.

RUSSIA BUYS LOCOMOTIVES FROM GERMANY Moscow, April 26.—Four of the largest locomotives ever bought by the Soviet government arrived in Moscow recently from Germany, each weighing 96 tons.

While a certain amount of section work has been done on nearly all lines under the Soviet regime, foreign railroad experts say the railroad beds are badly in need of repair everywhere and much will have to be done this summer if Russia's railways are to be kept in running order.

URGE AID FOR FAIRS THROUGH STATE SUBSIDY

Meeting Held Here at Which State and Three Regional Fairs Are Proposed

A COMMITTEE IS NAMED

Body Will Investigate State Aid Provided in Other States and Meet Budget Body

Systematic encouragement of state, regional and county fairs by appropriations of the legislature is favored by representatives of some of the leading fairs of the state. This sentiment was expressed in a meeting held here at the call of Commissioner of Agriculture and Labor J. A. Kitchen.

The matter will be laid before the budget committee which meets prior to the next session of the legislature, with a view of having definite recommendations submitted to the legislature. A motion was passed directing the appointment of a committee to seek the state aid.

The proposed distribution as outlined in the discussions of the fair here was the granting of a state subsidy of $10,000 to each of three regional fair associations, $20,000 to the state fair and aid to county fairs in proportion to their size and accomplishments.

The Interstate Fair, held alternately at Grand Forks and Fargo, would be classified as a regional fair. Two other regional fairs would be the Missouri Slope Fair held annually in Mandan and a proposed regional fair in Minot. The state fair, held alternately in Grand Forks and Fargo, should receive the greatest aid it was agreed.

Jamestown's Fair

During the discussion J. A. Barner, of Jamestown, spoke of the Stutsman county fair and of the rapid growth of the raising of fine livestock in the county. The fair, he said, was entitled to strong recognition because of the success it had had, and the fact that it draws from a large and populous territory in which there are many breeders of fine stock.

Minot representatives said that there are 17 counties either close to Minot or whose people must pass through Minot to attend a large fair. The movement for a regional fair in Minot is now in the hands of the county commissioners they stated.

E. R. Montgomery, of Grand Forks, secretary of the state fair held there; F. W. Roberts, of Fargo, secretary of the state fair held in Fargo, and Sam F. Crabbe all expressed the opinion that the county fairs must be developed in order to insure growth of the larger fairs, and that the holding of regional fairs would attract many exhibitors who now do not feel justified in arranging exhibits for but one or two fairs.

Committee Named

A committee composed of two representatives of fair associations of Grand Forks, Minot, Mandan and Fargo, and the county fair association of the state, will be named by Mr. Kitchen, as a result of a vote of the meeting, to compile a statement of the laws of other states which provide subsidies for fairs, and to meet with the legislative budget committee.

Mr. Crabbe made a talk on the recently organized North Dakota Development Association, and urged all fair boards to cooperate in urging attendance at the National Dairy Show to be held in St. Paul next October.

Those attending the conference were: J. H. McNicol, Grand Forks; C. H. Parker, Minot; J. L. Revig, Thomas

GRANT'S VISIT TO BISMARCK NOTABLE EVENT

Soldier Hero and President Here To Lay Territorial Capital Cornerstone

MANY NOTABLES HERE

General Ulysses Simpson Grant, the hundredth anniversary of whose birth is being celebrated throughout the length and breadth of the country today paid at least one visit to North Dakota. It was while the present state was still a part of the vast empire of the Northwest known as Dakota (generally Dakotah) territory. The occasion was the laying of the cornerstone of the territorial capital.

Because this event came in conjunction with one of the unusual events of history it is probable that the men and women who stood around the great warrior and former president on the day when the cornerstone was laid was one of the most brilliant in the history of similar functions.

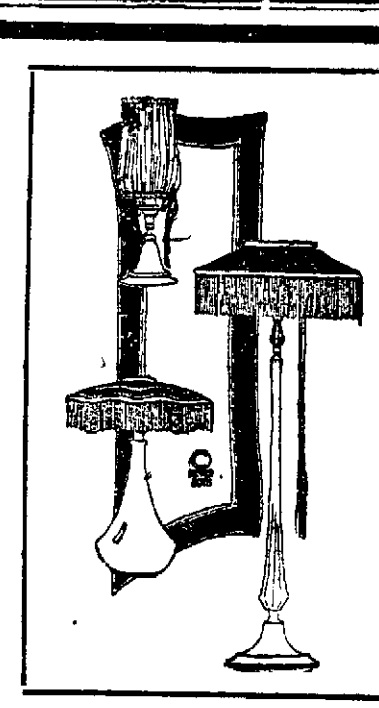

But at that time Grant was the central figure. He was at the zenith of his career. He had left the White House six years before and had hardly more than completed the tour of the world in which he received, according to the press of that time, the greatest homage ever accorded to a visitor from the Western world. The disease which was to end his life two short years later, had not at that time openly marked him.

The event, in addition to the laying of the cornerstone of the territorial capital building, one of the sections of the present capitol building, which brought to the state the then world leader and diplomat and representatives of many nations was the closing of the gap which had separated the rail connections between the Atlantic and the Pacific. Its special event was the driving of the golden spike that held the coupling rails at a point in Montana, that event signaling the completion of rail transportation for the first time in the history of all the world, across a continent and joining two major bodies of water.

Because the copies of the Bismarck Tribune of that date have been burned, the accounts of the presence here of the man who was born one hundred years ago today in pioneer Ohio are very meagre and consist of extracts and restatements. The date, according to one of these restatements was September 5th, 1823.

The list of the people appearing at the laying of the cornerstone as printed the following day included, in addition to that of General Grant, H. M. Teller, Secretary of the Interior, the British, German, Swedish and Danish Ministers to the United States; Baron Von Bleichroder, United States Senator Angus Cameron, W. M. Everts of New York; Marshall Field, J. J. Mill, Governor L. F. Hubbard of Minnesota; United States Senator J. R. McMillan, Minnesota, ex-Governor Ramsey, Minnesota; Carl Schurz, Gen. H. H. Sibley, Gen. W. D. Washburn.

Henry Villard, president of the Northern Pacific Railroad, the man who would buy a transcontinental line to keep it from competing with his interest in the west, the son-in-law of Wm. Lloyd Garrison was also present. He had interested German capital largely in the construction of the Northern Pacific and it is noted that Germany was represented by thirty men of affairs, members of the Reichstag and representatives of cities and commercial bodies.

England was represented officially by the Hon. Lionel Sackville-West, and with the minister were the Earl and Countess of Ouslaw, Lord Dunsley, Lord Carrington, Lord Dudley, the Hon. St. John and Lady Hilda Broderick, Sir Arthur Moberg, Sir W. Brampton Gordon, James Bryce, whose death occurred but yesterday and ten members of the British parliament.

The cornerstone was laid by President Henry Villard of the Northern Pacific, and there were speeches by him, by Gov. N. G. Ordway, William M. Everts, Frederick Billings, former president of the Northern Pacific, Rufus Hatch, Mayor Harrison of Chicago, Sitting Bull, Carl Schurz and Secretary of the Interior Henry M. Teller. Herman Ridder, editor of the New York Zeitung was also among those present.

General Grant had been called upon for a speech but declined. He reconsidered, however.

"At the close of every speech," says the report in the Bismarck Tribune, "the air was rent with a wild clamorous cry for Gen. Grant, and now he was led to the front and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen and fellow-citizens of Bismarck, the capitol of Dakota. It is with some reluctance, at this hour so near the time fixed for our departure, that I come forward to make a speech. As you are very well aware, when I get to talking to a crowd, I scarcely know when to quit. I am sure that if I did attempt to tell you what I have seen in your territory and what an impression it had made upon my mind, our train would not get started in time to drive the golden spike. I will be brief, and will say that although I have been in almost every other place in the United States, I never put my foot in Dakota Territory until yesterday. I had heard of this great country and its fertile soil, but was not prepared to see what my eyes have gazed upon since my arrival. With Mr. Everts I predict you a happy, prosperous future, and that within a few years you will rank away ahead of any of the eastern states and will be a state with two representatives and it may be three (unpublished members). Well, I am glad to see you all here; I am glad that I have participated in the ceremonies, and I am sorry that you called me out. (Prolonged applause.)"

A copy of the speech was not available in Bismarck, but was obtained from the files of the Tribune in the Minnesota State Library, through the work of the Librarian of the North Dakota Historical Society, Miss Ella Hedrick.

mon American soul, Grant, the great nationalist, who appraised union and nationality above all the frightful constant suffering, would rejoice to acclaim the republic of today*.

"We are today incontestably one people, with a common purpose, universal pride, nationwide confidence and one flag. * * * The contentions which beset us are not ours alone. They are not to be ignored but they have never halted the human progression and will not hinder progress of this firmly founded republic."

"Grant was himself a supreme example of American opportunity. Standing before his humble birthplace amid the surroundings of his obscure boyhood life, one doubts if three-quarters of a century ago anyone should have sought here for the military chieftain of the century. We have not a few, even today who think small town vision to be pitifully circumscribed and yet this little Clermont county furnished in Ulysses S. Grant and Henry C. Corbin two of the thirteen lieutenant generals who have been commissioned in all our history."

"Grant had been less of likelihood to eminence than his unpromising and unpropitious beginning. There was the suggestion of mediocrity in his development and even the steadfastness of his early manhood was stamped with failure. But there was the inheritance of quality, and he dwelt in and grew up in the freedom of democracy" * * *

The Soldier and the Man.

"The seizure of opportunity, more to serve than achieve made him victor, and the quiet man, garbed in failure at Galena, marched to the surpassing heights of military glory. All conquering in command and magnanimous in his triumphs, the world saw the soldier and the man, the soldier adored and the man beloved."

"Many an incident of the war, many a revelation of his sturdy character, showed that his face was set on the one supreme achievement—Union and the preserved ark of the American covenant of liberty. * * * He fought for a preserved union and restored nation, and succeeding generations are richer because of his example."

"One may guarantee the security of this republic so long as leaders among men put the country's good above personal and political advantage."

Washington April 27.—The Grant memorial, dedicated today, is one of the largest groups of statuary in the world. The equestrian portion of it is said to be exceeded in height only by the statue of Victor Emmanuel in Rome. Fifteen years have been required to bring it to virtuous completion.

The entire memorial which with today's dedicatory ceremonies takes its place in the national capitol is the soon-to-be-dedicated Lincoln memorial and the great monument which has stood for half a century as a memorial to Washington, is a beautiful work of art. Occupying a position of prominence at the east end of the Botanic Gardens facing the Capitol grounds it has been approved by Augustus Saint Gaudens, Charles F. McKim, Daniel C. French and other prominent American artists.

The marble superstructure on which the various groups stand is 262 feet long, 69 feet deep and five feet above the ground. An equestrian statue of Grant stands on a high central pedestal at the west side facing the Washington Monument and Lincoln memorial at the other end of the Mall. Lower pedestals at the north and south ends support massive groups of cavalry and artillery, respectively. The infantry arm is to be presented by bronze bas-reliefs to be placed on the sides of the main pedestal—this being the only part not completed.

The finished work presents an interesting of action and repose. At each end, upon the flanked exedrae, are colossal groups of struggling men and horses in all the paraphernalia and trappings of war. The group at the north end represents cavalry and the group at the south artillery. They face inward and picture a mad rush toward the center, across the wide stretch of marble that separates them from the mounted figure of the great commander in the center. The statue of Grant on horseback surveys it all. The military leader, as portrayed, wears the familiar slouch hat and military cloak of Civil War days. His pose is that of a reviewing officer and is said to be a fine conception of that quiet keenness and resolution that marked the man.

The giant bronze horse partakes something of the life and action that rages in the artillery and cavalry groups and seems to emphasize the calmness of the rider. That impression is heightened by the bas-reliefs of infantry designed for the sides of the pedestal on which he stands. One of these shows the foot troops in heavy marching order, trudging along doggedly on one of the forced marches that were part of their daily lives in the 'sixties, and the other bas-relief shows the infantry in battle.

At the four corners, near the base of the pedestal, are large bronze lions, couchant, emblematic of courage and strength. Each is protecting the American standard held in an outstretched paw. Around the superstructure are eight ornamental bronze candelabra.

The cavalry and artillery groups have been in position for several months and have been the objects of considerable interest to artists, tourists and the public generally. An idea of their size is conveyed by the statement that the cavalry group alone weighs 15 tons. Special artillery and cavalry drills were given at West Point Military Academy and other posts to aid the sculptor in the development of his designs for these arms. The finished products are regarded as

BRESLOW'S Great Refund Offer

To Bismarck People Who Are Weak, Sickly, Nervous Or Run-Down

IMPORTANT NOTICE:—By special arrangement, we can now extend to any person in Bismarck who wants more strength, energy and endurance, the opportunity of using Nuxated Iron so that if you do not get all and even greater benefits than you expect, it will not cost you one cent, because we ourselves will promptly return your money.

You may wonder how we can afford to do this. The answer is that week after week a large number of Bismarck people come into our store for Nuxated Iron; throughout the country over four million people use it annually. Blood examinations by physicians all over the country show that an enormous number of people do not have enough iron in their blood. Without iron the blood becomes thin, pale and watery. In many cases this so seriously weakens the vital organs that people often believe they have heart or stomach trouble, kidney diseases, nerve force exhaustion or some other serious ailment. They have pains and palpitation of the heart, sudden dizziness, faintness or spots before the eyes, when as a matter of fact the trouble is all due to lack of iron in the blood, and when iron is supplied, all of these symptoms disappear.

Genuine Nuxated Iron contains true organic iron like the iron in your blood. So many people are deficient in iron who would surely be benefited by this remarkable remedy that we recommend that you come right to Breslow's and get a bottle of Nuxated Iron, use it for two weeks and note the improvement in your own case. You are the judge—if you do not get all and even greater benefits than you expect, just bring back the wrapper and we will promptly refund the full amount you paid.

$100.00 Reward

The Maryland Casualty Co. of Baltimore, will pay $100.00 to any person or persons giving information leading to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties guilty of burglary, theft, or larceny committed at the residence of Jake Segal, 422 5th St., on the night of March 17, 1922, or regarding the present whereabouts of the stolen articles. Information given in this connection will be considered confidential. Make reports to Henry & Henry, Agents, 119 1/2 4th St., Bismarck, N. D.

The hunt for an accurate record of the appearance of General Ulysses S. Grant at the laying of the cornerstone of the Territorial Capitol here has emphasized to the State Historical Society here the importance of attempting to find files of the early papers published in the state.

The file most desired is that of the Bismarck Tribune. It was the first paper published in North Dakota, and Col. Lounsberry, with a natural historical bent, recorded many facts that would have passed by the ordinary newspaper man.

During the past week, Miss Ella Hedrick, Librarian of the Historical Department has spent all her spare time attempting to locate early time files of the paper. The present files in the Historical department go back to 1889, the date North Dakota became a state, but much of the history of Bismarck and Western North Dakota was completed before that time. Fires have destroyed all other known files of the paper in this state.

unselfish sacrifices and the indescribable sorrows. He felt the assurance of the nation preserved, and yet the one sweeping utterance from his heart was "let us have peace."

"I wish he somehow might know that in the more than a third of a century since his own and only surrender the indissoluble ties of union have been more firmly riveted and in the shared burdens and triumphs of American progress we have indeed continued at peace at home."

"Geographical sectionalism is only a memory now, and Mason and Dixon's Line remains only a historical record, where an ambiguity in the federal constitution was wiped out, and the nation resumed the onward march on its destined way."

Wounds Had To Be Healed

"Seemingly it was a long time in which to reestablish a conqueror so manifestly essential to the nation's greater achievements, but the understanding of the magnificent Lee was not universal throughout the south, the magnanimity of Grant was not manifest throughout the north. Wounds had to be healed, and part of them politics temporarily profited more in irritation than in healing. But the war with Spain consecrated North and South to a common cause, and the sacrifice and the nationwide service in the world war revealed the com-

THRILLS OF MELODRAMA TAKE PLACE OF FRILLS OF COMEDY ON BROADWAY

By JOHN O'DONNELL
New York, April 27.—An audience which would rather shudder than shimmy and which prefers the thrills of melodrama to the frills of comedy has come to the front with a vengeance in the current Broadway season.

At a time when a lean season is pattering out into a growing list of dark theaters, slashed salaries, a steadily increasing volume of tickets on the cut price mart, and with only a limited number of unquestionable hits holding their own—at this time the drama of shriek and horror, shudder and fiendishness, continues to pack the theaters.

The Crime Wave
The obvious explanation is the New York crime wave; the Broadway theater is fond of the crook melodrama because he likes to see the familiar incidents of daily life portrayed on the stage.

"The Bat," "The Cat and the Canary" and "Bull Dog Drummond" are the leaders in the current melodrama. The first of these is now the oldest Broadway attraction, and at the completion of 18 months is easily capable of finishing out two years.

"The Cat and the Canary," a shivery affair of spooky mystery, and "Bull Dog Drummond," an out-and-out melodrama of the old school imported from England, have settled down for long runs. "The Hindu" has succeeded "The Green Goddess" in meeting the demand for oriental fiendishness, and "Whispering Wires" is a melodrama based on radio.

Desire to Hiss
It is in "Bull Dog Drummond" that the frankest appeal has been made to the old-fashioned desire to hiss the beetle-browed and unrelenting villain and to cheer to victory the cool, chaste and athletic hero.

Warmed over and served in new dishes, this is the dramatic pap that the last generation applauded during one night stands in tank-town opera houses.

But in Times Square they hiss the villain and piercing feminine shrieks echo across Broadway as walls open and a clutching hand advances toward a sleeping heroine.

Perhaps theatrical managers are taking lessons from movie kings. "Why Girls Leave Home" and "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" are now successful movies; "Nellie the Beautiful Cloak Model" and "Bertha the Sewing Machine Girl" are soon to be released.

Sophistication!

MARTIN FAILED TO QUALIFY FOR LAND OFFICE JOB

Minot, N. D., April 27.—Martin Jacobson of Minot, recently appointed by President Harding to be register of the Minot land office, failed to qualify for office yesterday at 4:30 p. m. when his appointment was to become effective.

A. J. Schroer and William O'Leary, who have been receiver and register respectively of the office, withdrew from their duties yesterday at 4:30 p. m. Mr. Schroer and Mr. O'Leary were appointed during the Wilson administration.

The office is temporarily in charge of Miss Gladys Tate, but no business is being transacted, Miss Tate receipting for the different records etc., which Mr. O'Leary and Mr. Schroer checked out.

Just what future action will be taken regarding the handling of the office is not known at this time. It is presumed that Mr. Jacobson did not accept the appointment because of the fact that a recent order was issued consolidating the Dickinson, Williston and Minot offices with the Bismarck office. This order is to become effective June 30, it is said, when the records of the Minot office and the other offices will be moved to Bismarck. Mr. Jacobson would have accepted the appointment he would be in office only about two months, before the office would be moved to Bismarck.

It is considered possible that President Harding may immediately appoint another register for the office, but several persons who are interested in the affair do not believe that this action will be taken.

The salary of the office during the last few years has been very meager, it is said, and the register and receiver work on a commission.

A recent order consolidated the offices of receiver and register.

HALF-FARE RATES FOR MAY MUSIC FESTIVAL MAY 1-3

Fargo, N. D., April 27.—Arrangements have been made with the railroads by which persons attending the May Music Festival at Grand Forks, May 1-3, may obtain convention certificate receipts with their tickets, Mrs. J. These certificates, properly validated, will entitle the bearers to half-fare rates on the return trip, in the event that 150 of them are issued.

The certificates will be issued with tickets purchased April 27-30, and will be validated May 1-6. Each delegate who secures a convention certificate receipt with his ticket will have it validated by the secretary and railroad in Grand Forks. Those traveling over more than one road will secure a certificate from each road, each time a ticket is purchased.

SALARY CUT; CHIEF QUILTS.

Wahpeton, N. D., April 27.—Because of a decrease in his salary Wallace E. Morden has resigned as chief of police of Wahpeton, effective May 1, 1922. It is reported he may take up special police work in some other city.

SHINOLA HAS BIG YEAR

Most of the evidence at hand goes to show that 1921 was hardly what could be called a "banner year" in the various industries. It is encouraging then to note what the Shinola Company, manufacturers of Shinola, has to say regarding its business during the year just past and the prospects for 1922. In a letter to the jobbing trade this company says:

"The sales of Shinola during the year 1921 were nearly fifteen per cent greater than any previous year in the history of our business. January, 1922 was the largest January we have ever had, and more than double the business of 1921.

We believe that the very marked increase in our business during 1921, when most package goods were having hard shedding, was due to the fact that the retail price of Shinola was kept at 10 cents all during war time, and today when economy is the watchword, the 10 cent price still appeals strongly to the buying public. We are very optimistic about 1922 business and very grateful to the trade in general for the cooperation extended.

As indicated by the letter above, the Shinola Company reaped the reward for its liberal policy and is now looking forward to the best year in its history in consequence.

Of course, dealers and consumers alike know that Shinola is a first class article—a shoe polish that gives genuine satisfaction. As a 10-cent seller it has taken a prominent place in the list of grocery items.

A big advertising campaign has been carefully planned and the announcements are now running for this year. In these advertisements the 10 cent price and the Shinola Home Set are heavily featured.

The reports of secretaries and the election of officers were the features of the meeting of the Bismarck Women's Presbyterian Missionary Society held yesterday morning. Following are the names of officers elected: President, Mrs. Rebecca L. Phelps of Steele; vice-president, Mrs. O. A. Henderson of Mandan; recording secretary, Mrs. F. C. Hanson of Bismarck; corresponding secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Mary Weikert of Steele; secretary of freedmen, Mrs. Hunkle of Mandan; secretary of associate members, Mrs. Briggie of Hazelton; secretary for Young People's work, Mrs. Butler, secretary Westminster Guild, Miss H. R. Beach, Bismarck; secretary of Children's work, Mrs. Torvin of Steele; secretary literature, Mrs. Fred Hanson of Bismarck; secretary of Missionary Sewing, Mrs. O. A. Dr. Adelaide Woodward, of India gave a very interesting talk at the meeting yesterday. She spoke especially on the medical work and on the work among the outcasts. Mrs. Mattson of Bismarck gave an interesting talk on the Hopi Indians of Arizona. She has worked among these Indians and gave many personal incidents of interest. Miss Margaret Mowry read the "Life of Livingston" and the program was completed with a solo by Mrs. H. L. Stagner.

Dr. Adelaide Woodward gave another splendid address at the evening meeting, music was rendered by the Bismarck Young People's choir and ing women from sister republics to get a glimpse of suffrage in action.

The convention will follow the sessions of the Pan-American conference, and as the sessions will be similar to those of a national political convention, it will illustrate for the visitors how the women of the United States are exercising the political power they have obtained.

As a result of the convention and conference, suffrage leaders here expect an immediate and general expansion of the movement for equal rights for women throughout the American continent.

Mrs. Obert Olson gave a reading. The two days meeting were closed with a benediction said by Rev. Postlethwaite. The meeting next year will be held at Steele.

THE STATE'S OLDEST NEWSPAPER

(Established 1873)

MOVING TOWARD INTERIOR

Here is something interesting to all, especially important to men who carry dinner-pails:

The National City Bank of New York discovers that the manufacturing industry of the United States, which began along the Atlantic coast, is slowly moving toward the interior of the country where fuel and the bulk of manufacturing materials are produced.

Fifty years ago, two-thirds of the nation's manufactured articles were produced in the eastern strip beginning in New England and extending from there down into Florida.

Now that district produces less than half of the country's manufactured goods.

Each year the percentage of manufactured articles produced in the east grows smaller.

What will this lead to? Easy question to answer. The interior of the United States (the middle west) is destined to be the great manufacturing center, as it now is the center of production of raw materials, especially food.

Most of the gain in interior manufacturing has occurred in the Mississippi Valley and the states around the Great Lakes.

Ohio, for instance, turned out $749,000,000 of manufactured goods in 1900. In 1920 this had increased nearly six-fold, to $5,100,000,000.

Michigan, largely due to its giant auto industry, made the greatest advance, its output of manufactures increasing from $320,000,000 in 1900 to $3,466,000,000 in 1920.

California, reflecting the westward movement, jumped from $250,000,000 to nearly $2,000,000,000 in the same 20-year period.

Two things have caused this westward movement of manufacturing. Both have to do with economy.

The first is the desire to save expensive freight hauls by turning raw materials into finished goods close to the localities where the raw materials are produced.

The second cause of the shift of manufacturing is in land values. Manufacturing attracts congested population, which automatically increases land values.

Manufacturing and labor are moving to the interior of the country.

Similarly, and a more important movement, the tendency is for factories to get out of the cities and into villages or the open country, where land is cheap and rents low for employees.

The evil, however, shadows them, for when they move their industry to virtually worthless land they automatically make it steadily increase in value in proportion to their labors.

Rents and high land values probably are the hardest nuts to crack in our whole system of economics.

JOKES ACROSS THE SEA

Gilbert K. Chesterton believes in America for Americanism. He says that the efforts of the English to master the American jokes are and should be fruitless. Most of the American jests are on themes which are alien with the Britisher to begin with, but which may be a part of the daily life in the United States. In a way humor is international, but the trouble is that the average joke is provincial. Chesterton admits his failure to respond to many of the American witticisms, but at the same time he places no blame upon the Americans, who are bluntly dumb before his own brilliances. It is a horse apiece. World humor is rare.—Los Angeles Times.

INTERSTATE MIGRATION A BENEFIT

We are hardly conscious of the great interstate migration that takes place every year in the United States, but were it to cease for a time we should be sensible of something lost. America is our common country because the people are free to move about in it and they avail themselves of the privilege.

Interstate migration accounts for the rapid settlement of the country and for the practically uniform character of the nation's population. This movement, which has been constant for many decades, is responsible for the existence of the American nation.

The winning of the West was accomplished by people from the East, and the movement toward the setting sun is still going on. But coincidental with it is a counter-movement. Ambitious youths from the West head for the older centers of population to take advantage of conditions or opportunities which seem not to exist where they were born. The exchange is of mutual benefit to the different sections, and of immense advantage to the country as a whole.—Flint, Mich., Journal.

American investors, since the armistice, have brought $750,000,000 worth of foreign securities. The floating debt, owned by Europe to American business firms and individuals, is estimated as high as $4,000,000,000 and as low as $1,000,000,000, by international bankers.

RAILROADS ORDER.

American locomotive company got orders for 95 locomotives in one day. All around railroads are a buying very heavily. About 57,000 freight cars have been ordered so far this year, or twice as many as in all of 1921. So far in April roads have bought an average of 1,100 cars a day.

Paper industry finally seems definitely on upward grade, says American Pulp & Paper Association. Sales of fine papers are three-fourths normal. Wrapping paper sales, reflecting retail trade, are 67 per cent of capacity.

HIS WATER-LOG

"Long pause. Frightful pause. Hours. Whole court holding its breath. Pause like a chunk of eternity. Silent as that. Empty as that. What the devil was he thinking of? Had he forgotten? Was he awake now to the frightful places he kept getting into and wondering if this was another and where exactly it lay? Appalling pause. Dashed woman somewhere in the court goes off into hysterics and dragged out. He didn't hear a scream of it, that poor dazed chap in the box. Just stood there. Gray as a raked-out fire. Face twitching. Awful. I tell you, awful. Nearly went into hysterics myself. Humpo, snoring his tongue around his jaws, watching him like a dog watching his dinner being cut up. After about two years, slaps in his tongue and demands. 'Come, sir, for what purpose did you buy this oxalic acid?'"

"Sabre gives his first clear, calculated words since he had got up there. I guess he had been pulling himself together to look for a trap. He said very slowly, 'Mying each word, like a chap feeling along on thin ice; he said, 'Biffie—asked me to get it to—clean—my straw hat—for—me—for—Brighton.' 'Did she clean your straw hat for you?' 'Nods. 'You don't appear to be wearing it?' 'Shakes. 'Pray where, then, is this straw hat to clean which you obtained the oxalic acid? Is it at your house?' 'Shakes. 'Not at your house! Odd. Where then?' 'Look here—' 'Where then?' 'Look here—' 'Answer the question, sir. Where is this straw hat?' 'Gulps. 'Look here—' Gulps again. 'Look here. I lost it in the sea at Brighton.' 'Hummo—draws in his breath. Stares at him for two solid minutes without speaking. Then says, like one speaking to a ghost, 'You lost it in the sea at Brighton? You lost it in the sea at Brighton?' Has an inspiration. Inspired in hell. Turns like a flash to the coroner. 'I have been with the witness, sir! Sit down Plump. Court lets go its breath like the four winds round a chimney. Sabre stares out of the box. Falls across into his seat. 'Too much for me, old man. I hawled out people in front of me nearly jumping out of their skins with the start. I hawled out. Mr. Coroner, I saw the witness at Brighton and he told me he'd lost his hat in the sea.' 'Buddha, like a talking idol discovering an infidel in his temple. 'Who are you sir?' 'I'm a solicitor. I'm Mr. Sabre's solicitor.' 'Buddha to Sabre: Have you a solicitor in the court, Sabre?' 'No. No! Get away! Get out of it! Get away from me!'"

"I've have no standing in this court sir," says Buddha.

"Awful. Nothing to be done."

"Presently Twynning in the box. Last witness—put up to screw down the lid on Sabre's coffin, to polish up the argument before it went to the jury. Stood there with the ropes footling at the corners of his mouth, stood there a man straight out of the loins of Japhet Israel, stood there making his testimony more damning by retreating. It was being dragged out of him. Told a positively damning story about meeting Sabre at the station on his departure from leave a day after the girl was sacked. Noticed how strange his manner was; noticed he didn't like being that to old Sabre and stooped over him and touched him with both hands and said, 'Marko, Marko.'"

"Matter of fact Sabre was the first one to speak. He threw up his arm from where he'd been covering his face, just as he'd thrown it up when I called out, and swung her hands aside and called out, 'Don't touch me! Let me alone. Leave me alone.'"

"She stepped to the man beside him, and the chap got up as if he'd been shot. He'd been covered and disappeared. And she took his place and sat down beside Sabre and poor old Sabre crouched away from her as if he was stung, and old Buddha, reaching out for his dignity, said, 'You may remain there, madam, if you do not interrupt the court.'"

"There wasn't much more to interrupt. Twynning had had about as much as he wanted; he'd done what he was out to do, anyway. The case finished. The coroner had a go at the jury. They went on. I suppose they were gone ten minutes. Shuffled in again. Gave their verdict. I was watching Sabre. He looked down his hands from his face and stared with all the world's agony in his face, straining himself forward to hear. Verdict. They found suicide while temporarily insane and added their most severe censure of the conduct of the witness Sabre. He jumped up and flung out his hands. 'Look here—Yook here—Censure! Censure! Censure!'"

"Dropped back on his seat. He was shot. Twisted himself up. Sat rocking.

"Court cleared in less than no time. He left in my corner. This Lady Tybar. Sabre, twisted up. Bobby or two. I began to come forward. Sabre looks up. Looks round. Gets his hat. Collects his old stick. Starts to hobble out.

"This Lady Tybar gets in front of him, me alongs/de of her by then. 'Marko, Marko.' (That was what she called him.) He sort of pushes at her and at me: 'Let me alone. Let me alone. Get right away from me. Hobbles away down the room.

"We followed him.

"Followed him, the pair of us, up to the main road. Sabre tried again. Tried. He swung round and faced us. Let me alone. Won't anyone let me alone? Get right away from me. Look here—Look here. If you want to go hawling for me, get right away from me and leave me alone. Do you hear? Leave me alone."

"Hobbled away out towards Penny Green, bobbing along on his stick fast as he could go. 'Oh, Oh—' and began to cry. Clear we were only driving him mad by following him now. There was a cab came prowling by. I gave the chap a pound note and told him to follow Sabre—'Get up just alongside and keep there,' I said. 'He'll likely get in. Get him in and take him up to Crawshaw, Penny Green, and come back to me at the Royal Hotel and there's another quid for you.'"

"Old man I was along to the Royal with this Lady Tybar. Told her who I was and what I knew. Ordered some tea there (which we didn't touch) and she began to talk to me. Talk to me."

"She talked about herself and Sabre. What did she say? No, you'll have to let that go, old man. It was more what I read into what she said. I'll keep it for a bit, anyway."

"There's else to tell than that. That cabman I'd got hold of sent in awhile after to see me. Said he'd picked up Sabre a mile along and taken him home. Stopped a bit to patch up some harness or something and 'All of a heap' (as he expressed it) Sabre had come flying out of the house again into the cab and told him to drive like hell and all to the office—to Fortune, East and Sabre's. Said Sabre behaved all the way like as if he was mad—shouting to him to hurry and carrying on inside the cab so the old man was terrified. 'I said to the office, 'What the devil now?' I ran to Lady Tybar and we hurried round. We were scared for him, I tell you. And we'd reason to be—when we got there and found him."

CHAPTER VII

When that cab which Hapgood had dispatched after Sabre from the coroner's court overtook its quest, the driver began, in a fat and comfortable voice, a beguiling monologue of "Keb, sir? Keb, sir Keb? Keb? Keb, sir?"

"Sabre at first gave no attention. About a mile along his disabled knee, and all his much over-wrought body refused longer to be the flogged slave of his tumultuous mind.

He got in.

Sabre stumbled into his house and pushed the door behind him with a resolution expressive of his desire to shut away from himself all creatures of the world and be alone—he left entirely alone. By habit he climbed the stairs to his room. He collapsed into a chair.

ELEMENTARY RIGHTS HAVE BEEN INVADED

Post-War Reaction Undoubtedly Responsible, According To The Socialist Party

CONVENTION APRIL 29

Says Propaganda of "Open Shop" Is An Assault on Freedom of The Wage Workers

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS)
Cleveland, O., April 27.—That "elementary rights won by centuries of sacrifice have been invaded by post-war reaction" is contended in a Congressional program which, according to preliminary agenda issued from national Socialist headquarters at Chicago by Otto Brandstetter, executive secretary, will be presented here at the Socialist Party convention April 29. The preamble to this program affirms the Socialists' ultimate aim of public ownership and democratic control of the great industries, but adds, "while preparing for this fundamental change and working toward it as a final end, we realize questions of grave immediate concern face us today."

The post-war reaction has chosen the organizations of labor for the principal object of its attack, the proposed program states. "The propaganda of the 'open shop' is an assault upon the freedom of organization of the wage workers."

The Kansas Industrial Court with its prohibition of strikes is the logical result of this nation-wide propaganda. Already bills have been introduced in a number of states and in congress embodying this vicious idea. Anti-syndicalist laws have been passed in many states which threaten to restrict or abolish the workers' right of organization."

The agenda also contained the following statements: "With the twelfth years the foreign policy of the United States has witnessed a radical and alarming change."

The system of shameless profiteering continues unabated. "Human life and health are still sacrificed for the gains of the masters of industry."

"Widespread and inhuman child labor still curses a nation that boasts of its civilization of the trade unions have been mobbed and driven out of some communities. In the areas of the steel trust union meetings have also been suppressed. These invasions of the most elementary rights won by centuries of sacrifice cannot be permitted to continue without effective protest."

In this period of widespread unemployment and general distress caused by the greed, planlessness and recklessness of the capitalist shrews, the governing parties have shown a callous indifference to the wants and needs of millions of workers."

Socialist Platform Interpreted
The theory and principle underlying the ultimate aim of the party is briefly explained in the preamble, which refers to the Socialist platform as "an interpretation of society and a forecast of what humanity must do to avert the collapse or the destruction of the modern nations. It asserts that 'private property in the resources of nature, the great plans of production, the means of transportation and communication, are rapidly becoming the corporate property of a class.'"

"This rapidly centralizing ownership," it continues, "is not due to the malice of the owners. The great discoveries and inventions of the past and present centuries have increased our power to produce wealth. To fully use this power great organizations of capital have resulted. The small plant and small industry must give way to the large one. Competition slowly gives way to corporate organization and control. This tendency is inevitable in an age of machinery, steam and electric power, and organization."

"But corporate ownership and control enables a class to monopolize the chief benefits of industrial progress. Enormous incomes flow into the laps of the great masters of our industrial life. A struggle ensues between the owners of industry and the masses who work in the industries."

"Modern industry breeds this irrepressible conflict. Socialism will end it. The great industries must pass out of the hands of a small minority of the population into the hands of the nation, organized and administered by the masses and representing the will of all."

SHOGI EFFENDI WILL PRESENT BAHAI PLANS

Nine Pilgrims Who Have Just Returned From Palestine To Be Present At Congress

Chicago, April 27.—The plans of Shogi Effendi, who has been guardian of the Bahai cause since the death in November of Abdul Baha, will be presented to the fourteenth annual Bahai congress here by nine pilgrims who have just returned from Haifa Palestine, where they conferred with the leader. The congress represents the Bahai movement for religious unity and universal peace. Meetings will be open to the public.

A banquet Saturday evening will open the program. Sunday morning delegates will visit Wilmette, where foundations of a Bahai temple, designed by Louis Bourgeois, are in course of construction. This temple is intended as a house of worship open to all sects and religions. Plans call for a dome and minarets like those of Oriental mosques.

Addresses at the convention will include the following: "Untrodden Paths to Universal Peace," Dr. Zia Bagdadi; "Investigation of Reality—Universal Truth That Shall Set All Men Free," W. H. Randall of Boston; "When Science and Religion Are One," Louis Gregory of Washington, D. C.; "The Springtime of the Oneness of Mankind," Mrs. May Maxwell of Montreal, P. Q.; "Apostles of the New Day and Their World Journeys," Miss Martha L. Root of Pittsburgh, Pa. Mountford Mills of New York will be another speaker.

Bah First Reader
The movement was first led by a young Persian called the Bah, who was put to death in 1850 after predicting the coming of a great world messenger. A Persian noble, Baha o'Liah, was acclaimed as the one heralded by the Bah. He and a few of his followers were driven into exile and in 1868 imprisoned in the barracks of Akka in Syria. From his prison he disseminated his doctrines of world-brotherhood in western Asia, and his eldest son, Abdul Baha, continued his teachings after the former's death in 1892. Since then the movement represented a unification into various countries both in the Occident and the Orient. Its adherents believe that this period is the beginning of a golden age of human brotherhood and identify their doctrines with those of Christ concerning the kingdom of God. They maintain that "religion must be in accord with science and reason," and stress as basic principles "independence, investigation of truth," "equality between men and women," "solution of the economic problem," "and international auxiliary language," and an "international tribunal."

BY EDWARD M. THIERRY.
New York, Apr. 27.—The jinx of the million-dollar throat has struck another great tenor.
John McCormack, the great concert tenor, has been dangerously ill with an infected throat. Physicians say he is out of danger—but he will not sing again for months.
It was an injury to the throat that started the seven and a half months illness that killed Enrico Caruso, grand opera's greatest tenor.
McCormack, world's highest priced singer, is suffering from a different malady than Caruso's, but there are points of similarity.
A capillary burst just above the vocal cords in Caruso's throat while he was singing in Brooklyn, Dec. 12, 1920. Two days later he was said to have recovered and he was able to appear. Ten days later he developed pleurisy and was operated on.
Last spring, much improved, he returned to Italy. But it was to die. For he had a relapse and died the first week in August.
McCormack a month ago had an attack of acute laryngitis while singing in Minneapolis. Returning to New York he was to sing at the Hippodrome Sunday night, April 9. But he was taken ill and for the first time in 13 years forced to abandon a concert. His illness was not thought to be serious. But within a few days it was reported that he was near death.
Now all concert engagements for three months have been called off.
McCormack's latest throat attack is called an outgrowth of the Minneapolis illness and due partly to his refusal to rest sufficiently. Within a few days he lost 20 pounds, normally weighs 220—due to a greatly swollen uvula, making it impossible to take solid food and actually threatening strangulation. Physicians said he had a streptococcal infective throat.

Hoover's application was forwarded by the rowing committee of the D. B. C. and if his entry is accepted he will leave for London June 15. The English Henley races will be rowed over the Thames river course in London, June 30.

Disappointed over the prospects for a championship race in the states when John B. Kelly, world's champion amateur sculler and former holder of the Philadelphia challenge cup emblematical of the world's title retired, Hoover would cancel his entry in an amateur sculling event scheduled to be held in Philadelphia June 3, in his quest for world honors.

When Kelly announced his retirement this spring shortly after the time limit of acceptance or refusal of Hoover's challenge for a titular contest, the veteran Philadelphian turned the cup over to his cousin, Tom Corrado, skip of the Vesper Boat club, to defend.

Now a special race has been arranged for June 3, but as Hoover has met and defeated every sculler entered in this regatta, the D. B. C. decided to give preference to the English event and try to place the local sculling crack in a meet to compete with the best of English scullers, defeat of which would mean world recognition for Hoover and the D. B. C.

Moscow, April 27.—Russian exports for January this year amounted to $1,250,000, according to recent announcement, the goods being made up chiefly of oil products, flax, hemp and furs. The shipments went mostly to England, Latvia and Estonia, a small part being sent to America.

The imports of Russia for January amounted to $8,710 tons, valued at $11,400,000, this being exclusive of the food taken into the country by the several relief organizations. The imports show an increase of nearly six times as compared with January, 1921. The bulk of the imports came from Germany with England next, then Latvia, the United States and Estonia in the order named.
